Sports Basement is a sporting-goods retailer with four locations (plus a pop-up) in the San Francisco Bay Area. We take pride in selling the best brands at basement prices. But if you've ever been to the Basement, you probably know that that description doesn't really do us justice. Walk into one of our stores and you know immediately that this will be a different shopping experience. You may not be able to pinpoint why, but you'll probably sense it. We have great prices, but everything is top quality. Our stores are huge, but they feel and act like small shops. We make all of our signs, racks, fixtures and displays by hand in our wood and metal shop.

Our exclusive retailer for the South Bay Duathlon

Discounts will be available for 10% off in any of their local stores across the Bay Area.

In 1985 Rudy Barbazza created Rudy Project with the firm conviction to improve the performance of athletes all over the world. A love of progress, a passion for style and a keen eye for quality all contributed to give life to his Vision: the world's most technologically advanced sports eyewear. Rudy Project works in cooperation with athletes from all fields, listening to what they want and need. Rudy Project never stops researching to find the latest and best materials available to realize cutting-edge products.

Technically Cool: the two words that can best sum up this Vision; the two words that best express the DNA of each and every design carrying the brand Rudy Project.

Listening to your body is one thing, understanding what it is telling you is an altogether different story. Polar helps you get under the skin of your training. We attribute it to a combination of expertise in sports, physiology and electronics, coupled with a deep understanding of customer needs. It's no surprise then that we've been leading the way in technological innovations and heart rate monitors since 1977.

And we cater to all levels of fitness by offering a comprehensive product range, along with essential support and advice. Everything from improving an athlete's sports performance to helping people enjoy a healthier lifestyle, and aiding rehabilitation and weight management.

Nuun, pronounced “Noon,” was the first company to separate electrolyte replacement from carbohydrates. Before Nuun, if you wanted electrolytes, the result was a bottle full of sugar. With our simple, self-dissolving, sugar-free electrolyte tab, we revolutionized the sports drink forever.

Nuun was originally the brainchild of a student and professor from the Tuck School of Business at Dartmouth College. An avid cyclist, he longed for a lightweight, easy to use hydration method that didn’t include a sticky high-calorie mess. His research led to the creation of a sugarless, dissolvable, and portable tablet called Nuun.

Committed to creating delicious, healthy food made in a way that respects and protects the places where people live, work and play; we use organic ingredients in all of our products. In addition to using only the highest quality ingredients available, we do not use artificial colors, flavors, sweeteners, preservatives or ingredients sourced from genetically-modified organisms.

On a journey towards sustainability, we work diligently to reduce our environmental footprint in all areas of the business from the field to the final product. We are guided by five equally-weighted bottom lines to sustain our people, brands, business, community and planet.
